1959 COMMITMENT TO FAITH & LEARNING
ROCHESTER COLLEGE
Rochester College is doing new and exciting things for the 2009-2010 school year. Even though we are not yet to mid-term for the spring semester, we have already committed to Board-approved revisions of how we will operate in the fall. The plan makes us academically stronger, more inviting to students who are considering living on campus, and opens new worlds of possibilities.

In order to address the rising costs of attending college in the declining global economy, Rochester College is lowering the charge for room and board on our campus. Many schools are like us in that they have experienced declining numbers of students in on-campus housing. We can lower our costs, raise the total number of students in our residence halls, and still generate the same amount of revenue. Our other option is to have expensive dorm rooms sit empty. For 2009-2010, room-and-board costs are being reduced a full 20%.

We will strengthen our academic model by moving (back) to a classic format of interdisciplinary education. Our liberal arts curriculum will feature what we are calling a Christian Integrated Learning Community. This model will introduce new vistas of vitality, flexibility, and freshness into our academic life. Stay tuned for details!

Rochester College will offer its first nursing degree in the form of an RN-to-BSN degree-completion program that combines online courses with intensive short courses on our campus. Sixty-three percent of nurses in the State of Michigan have their RN status, and many of those people want to pursue a BSN (Bachelor of Science in Nursing) degree for the sake of career advancement. We will begin serving those students this year. Crittenton Hospital and Medical Center will be our clinical partner for the program.

With an enhanced IT platform in place to begin our nursing program, we will also increase our online courses dramatically across the board. You may wish to consider enrolling online with us in either an undergraduate program to complete your college education or perhaps in our masters-level program (MRE) in religious studies. We will be able to give you specifics on these programs in the very near future.

We will introduce a new program for degree completion at Macomb Community College. It is an in-demand B.S. degree in Mass Communication that has potential for attracting new people into our student body.

We are preparing for the future with confidence in God’s will for our mission and your support in helping us achieve it. New and exciting options have emerged in an economic and social climate that some had predicted would be our undoing. But God is greater than any challenge before us.

SOCIAL CLUBS AID CITY’S TWO FOR TUZ PROJECT

Rochester Hills Mayor Bryan Barnett and his wife Corrin (’06) made a special visit to the college campus during chapel on September 12, 2008. Rochester Hills which has one of the largest Albanian populations in the country established a sister-city relationship with Tuz in Montenegro. Rochester College responded to the mayor’s call for assistance with a commitment to provide a $100,000 scholarship (tuition, room and board) to a deserving student. The student will enroll in the fall of 2009 and be required to return to Tuz after graduating to invest his/her knowledge in the community. The campus social clubs also aided in collecting school supplies for children living in disadvantaged neighborhoods in Tuz.

Coach Pleasant inducted into Michigan basketball Hall of Fame

On Friday, October 3, 2008 the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan inducted Rochester College head basketball coach and athletic director Garth Pleasant into its Hall of Fame.

The BCAM Hall of Fame inducted its first members in 1985. The purpose was to honor coaches who had been successful for many years. There are now over 100 coaches in the Hall. To qualify for the Hall of Fame a coach must have coached varsity/college head basketball for 20 years or more and/or accumulated 300 or more victories.

Pleasant graduated from Rochester College in 1969 and has served as head basketball coach since 1979. He recorded his 600th victory in 2006. He has set a record for the most college basketball national championships with four titles to his name. In addition to his coaching duties, Pleasant is a professor of physical education at the college and hosts nearly 300 students every summer during the Lake Norcentra Basketball Camp. He has also served as minister for the Lake Orion Church of Christ for the past 26 years.

During a special ceremony on the evening of Homecoming at Rochester College to recognize his achievement, Pleasant said “It’s not about me, it’s about Rochester College and how it changes people’s lives. I’m just fortunate to be here.” Pleasant acknowledged his wife, Pat, during the speech who he met while in college and at one time served as the team’s utility manager. “There’s a plaque in my home that says ‘We interrupt this marriage for basketball season.’ She’s the real hall of famer,” said Pleasant.

President’s Circle of Honor donors join Friends of the College for luncheon

Hundreds of friends, supporters and community members filled the ballroom at the Royal Park Hotel in downtown Rochester for a luncheon featuring Max Lucado on November 1. The luncheon was the second significant event highlighting the 50th Anniversary of Rochester College. The first major event featured Nobel Prize winner Elie Wiesel in September.

The luncheon was preceded by the Annual President’s Circle of Honor reception which was created to honor friends of the college who have financially supported one of the following giving societies: the Heritage Society, the President’s Society, and the Endowed Scholarship Society.

Last year Rochester College established an award to honor those who serve as an example of sacrificial service and philanthropic generosity. The award is named after J. Robert and Mary Utley because of their steadfast commitment to scholarship and service. The Utleys were the first recipients of the award in 2007.

In recognition of their selfless spirit of giving, the 2008 award was presented to Harold and Helen Slater. The Slaters caught the vision that led to the founding of Rochester College and worked hand-in-hand as they invested time and energy to build a Christian institution in the Great Lakes region. The Slaters were not able to attend the event, but their sons Ken and Jim accepted the award on their behalf.

Following the reception, Klint Pleasant, vice president of development for Rochester College, conducted the welcome and introduced two special video presentations—the first featured the history of Rochester College and the second, personal messages of appreciation from several scholarship recipients.

Lucado drew the context of his discussion from his upcoming book, Fear LESS: Imagine Your Life Without Fear. He recalled an article in Time Magazine in which filmmaker Woody Allen attributed his inability to sleep at night to his unbelief in God. Allen said that he made movies to stay distracted and keep his focus off the big picture. “I’ve had Woody Allen moments surface at church,” confessed Lucado. He reflected on a specific occasion while preparing for a sermon on Easter Sunday. “I thought to myself, the resurrection is the craziest story I’ve ever heard ... somewhat of a UFO account. We’ve all had our moment in the Valley of the Shadow of Doubt.”

However, Lucado said he found a way out of doubt in the Gospel of Luke chapter 24. “The disciples had their doubts when the women told them that Jesus had risen from the tomb. We weren’t the first to think that the story of Christ sounded like nonsense.”

Lucado then praised the college for serving as an institution where Christians could continually draw upon the faith and strength of one another. “Rochester College is all about opening minds to hope and teaching young people to engage hearts and minds.”

As our fiftieth year marches on, we look back at student life over the decades and recognize the people, organizations and activities that have shaped the campus into what it is today.

50 Years of Student Life

Throughout its entire 50 year history, Rochester College has provided exceptional opportunities for student involvement in extracurricular activities. Every academic year, the college has offered a variety of venues for those interested in music, theatre, religious activities, student government, publications, and intercollegiate sports.

The pioneer student body set an amazing precedent for student involvement. The first edition of the yearbook featured 10 student organizations and one athletic team. The A Cappella Chorus boasted 31 members, involving over half of the student body.

In a 1986 newsletter to prospective students, the admissions office quoted from an article in the Oakland Press stating that extracurricular activities “are not only supportive of the academic mission of schools, but are inherently educational and vital to the total development of youth.” The Oakland Press article cited surveys indicating the positive influence such participation has upon student grades.

Audiences throughout the nation have been touched by the music of the A Cappella Chorus and Autumn. Others have been moved by poignant moments on the stage and rousing performances at Celebration. Sports enthusiasts have marveled at the success of athletic teams, which have won national championships in basketball, soccer, cross country, and volleyball. The lives of the aged, the poor, and the helpless have been blessed by the servant hearts of Rochester College students.

The experiences gained through participation in extracurricular activities have served many students well. Former student leaders now serve in similar roles in their professions and communities. Athletes coach teams in schools, colleges, and community leagues. Former musicians and actors teach and share their talents in educational settings and a variety of performing venues. Former participants in Mission Emphasis and IMAGE serve local churches and mission points across the globe.

Building upon 50 years of tradition and excellence, the students of Rochester College continue to grow from the life experiences gained through student involvement and continue to make the world a better place through their efforts.
Milestones from the Sixties

Believe it or not, there was a time when like most public universities, the college had its own cheerleading squad to support the men’s varsity basketball team. The cheerleaders eventually evolved into a variety of pep clubs including the Warriors, the Indians and the Warriorettes. There were also several surprising choices for intercollegiate sports that are now defunct including badminton, tennis, bowling, flag football and horseshoes!

Although many annual celebrations like Winter Banquet, Homecoming and Beautiful Day continue to be a mainstay, other major events such as February banquet, spring banquet and Valentine’s banquet subsequently dissolved from the campus calendar. The theatre department of the sixties also took an interest in a plethora of musicals and dramas and even recognized the 400th birthday of Shakespeare in 1965 with a performance of Macbeth.

Milestones from the Seventies

Much like today, the Student Council, now known as Student Government or SG, was heavily involved in campus development and community outreach. In the fall of 1972 they raised over $12,000 to purchase a new bus and a station wagon. In the area of campus ministry, the Missions Emphasis members launched an aggressive door-knocking campaign in 1974 to spread the gospel and reportedly reached over 30,000 people. It was also in the seventies that the A Cappella Chorus, under the direction of Ed Ritchie, traveled to Europe to conduct the first of two consecutive French Campaigns for Christ.

Robert “Bob” Cuchran, ’67

On playing men’s basketball: “My favorite memory was meeting a cheerleader, Nola Lee (’67), who became my wife 43 years ago. As a student and member of the basketball team at RC, I encountered many people who had a positive impact on my spiritual life and educational growth.”
Remembering Coach Bill Shinsky

The son of an autoworker at Ford’s River Rouge plant, William Shinsky was born September 26, 1930 in Detroit. He excelled in sports from an early age and grew up to be a baseball and football star at Fordson High School in Dearborn.

North Central Christian College opened about the time Bill graduated from Abilene Christian College. In 1960, Dean Lucien Palmer hired Shinsky to coach the men’s basketball team and to teach physical education.

The college had only one team, men’s basketball, and that team played in a Detroit church league. In his first season, Coach Shinsky led the Warriors to a 16-5 record and introduced intercollegiate competition.

President Lucien Palmer promoted the coach to athletic director in 1967. That year, Shinsky added three sports: women’s basketball, women’s softball, and track. He also recruited a basketball star named Garth Pleasant, who led the Warriors to their first conference title in 1969. A year later, Shinsky returned to his first love when he formed and managed the college’s first baseball team.

Shinsky was a busy man on campus in the early 1970s. He served as director of student life, athletic director, coach for several intercollegiate sports, and professor of physical education. In 1971, Shinsky made the most important hire of his career when he brought his protege, Garth Pleasant, back to Michigan Christian as men’s basketball coach.

Over the next eighteen years, Shinsky established several more intercollegiate sports at Michigan Christian, including women’s basketball and men’s soccer. He continued to coach the baseball team until he suffered a stroke in 1990. Shinsky retired as athletic director two years later and handed off the athletic department to Pleasant.

On March 3, 2004 Coach Shinsky finally rested. Three days later, the Warriors won the national championship. In his 44 years as a Warrior, Bill Shinsky did more than establish seven men’s and women’s intercollegiate sports programs - coaching every one of them at one time or another; more than transform a ping pong table in a tool shed into the college’s department of physical education; and more than mentor one of America’s all-time great college basketball coaches.

Bill Shinsky is Rochester College’s coach - then, now, and forever. His muscular faith, hope, and love built up the sinews of Rochester College. His spirit lives on in generations of Warriors who learn how to win with grace, honor, integrity, sacrifice, and love. Full story available in the Season’s of Rochester College memorial book.

Milestones from the Eighties

Company formed in 1984 to represent the college at various youth functions. Initially, the group offered a series of humorous one-act plays including “That Was No Lady, That Was a Private Eye.” The group began producing spiritually-oriented skits in 1995. In 1981 about 100 guests joined members of the W Club as the organization hosted its first of many lectureships for women. Throughout the 1980s, the club featured employees, spouses of employees, student and off-campus guest speakers at the annual event.

The late eighties proved to be a season for accomplishment among the college’s athletic department. The volleyball team won the first trophy for a women’s sport in 1988 after placing second in the Cincinnati Bible Tournament, the cross country team won their first national championship in 1989 and in the same year the men’s basketball team commemorated their first national title with championship rings.

Milestones from the Nineties

Traditional activities and student organizations continued to draw talented leaders, musicians, drama enthusiasts and athletes during the 1990s. Pied Pipers, a children’s theatre troupe, debuted in 1991 with a performance for a graduating class at Oakland University. Three years later, the A Cappella Chorus received an invitation to perform with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at a four-day series which drew an estimated 7,500 individuals.

IMAGE formed in the fall of 1997 to promote interest in international mission efforts. The group actively participated in local service projects and international mission trips. Near the end of the decade, members of Autumn participated in a 25th anniversary reunion with former members of the ensemble. Nearly two-thirds of the group’s former members performed for a large crowd of supporters in 1999.

Anita Reeves, ’87
On performing with Company: “Company was like my second family. We had a great mom, Gale Edwards, and brothers and sisters who played hard, stood up for each other, leaned on each other, shared good and bad times and yes, even got on each other’s nerves, but we’ll always be family.”
Milestones from the New Millenium

In 2001, crimson and white were selected as the new college colors in order to provide a more practical color combination than the original gold and white. It was also in the new millennium that the music department replaced the Jazz Band with a full Concert Band with a wide variety of wind and string instrumentalists. Moreover, the athletic department celebrated the college’s third national championship in 2004 after an overtime win in Tulsa, Okla. The Warriors returned to the USCAA nationals the following year to win their first back-to-back championship.

Nicole Chiles, ’08

On music, theatre and sports: “I was able to do everything I love while still getting a worthwhile degree. I could do all the fun things but still balance them with school. It prepared me to balance life as a full-time teacher.”

Milestone excerpts were taken from The Seasons of Rochester College, the college’s 50th anniversary memorial book written by college historian Larry Stewart. The book is available in the campus bookstore or by calling 800.521.6010 (Option 5). Visit www.rc.edu/anniversary for more details.
Associates commemorate college history with special quilt

The Associates of Rochester College have played a vital role in the development of the institution since it was founded in 1959. Nearly every building on campus, as well as some of the equipment, athletic fields and parking areas, exist in part as a result of major fundraising contributions of the Associates.

Over a dozen chapters make up and support the college through various events and projects. The South Lyon chapter recently initiated the assembly of a 71”x85” memorial quilt in honor of Rochester College’s 50th anniversary. Wanda Moon of Northville and her mother, Louise Murray of South Lyon, were instrumental in designing and sewing the quilt. Wanda and Louise selected the “Snapshots” pattern from the book Happy Hour by Atkinson Designs, while fellow Associates helped choose the colors and fabric. Wanda and Louise sewed the quilt. They enlisted their friend, Rebecca Pelletier-Doyle to do the machine quilting.

Both Wanda and Louise have sewn countless quilts over the past 40 years for family and friends, but Wanda admits that the 50th Anniversary quilt held special meaning. “This quilt was so much fun. It reminded me of the exuberance of young people and that’s why we selected the swirly pattern,” she says. “We also chose a nontraditional pattern to give the design a sense of looking forward and building excitement about the future.” The main colors include crimson, to represent the college colors, gold for the golden anniversary, and blue, green and brown for the natural beauty of the campus grounds surrounded by trees and lakes.

The quilt was completed in about six weeks and is currently on display in the Rochester College executive offices. It will be auctioned off during the Partnership Dinner on Saturday, April 4, 2009. To learn more about the Associates visit http://associates.rc.edu. To inquire about the quilt contact the Development Office at development@rc.edu.
A match made in musical heaven

In each anniversary issue of Northstar, we profile an outstanding alumnus from one decade. Last issue, we featured Marvin Mathis from the 1980s. Representing the '90s are Dion and Kristy Frasier.

The 1990s brought a wave of pivotal physical and academic changes to Rochester College. Among those changes were the opening of the preschool in 1990, renovation of the music center by alumni volunteers in 1992, the approval of the bachelor of business administration degree in 1993, the bachelor of science program in 1996, and connection to the Internet in 1995.

The most significant changes came in 1997 when the institutional name officially changed to Rochester College and construction was completed to Ferndale Hall, Haggatt Hall and Dearborn Commons. The college also opened its doors to working adults via a night and weekend program now known as the Center for Extended Learning. The campus transformation in 1997 helped launch the college into an era of growth and expansion and extended its reach to an influx of bright and enterprising Christian students.

Kristy Petrich ('97) became one of the many students who took advantage of the college’s new degree offerings when she arrived on campus in 1993. A native of Flint, Mich., Kristy’s sister Karen Christian preceded her as a graduate in 1990. Their father, Fritz Petrich, was a former A Cappella chorus director.

“The decision to attend Rochester College was made for me,” admits Kristy. However, that choice turned out to be a life-changing experience to which she has no regrets. “Rochester College was definitely a different experience. I grew up in church but didn’t really understand what it meant to have a relationship with Christ until I came here.”

An active member of chorus, Tau and Autumn, Kristy recounts the worship experience with the performing groups among her fondest memories. It was in the latter part of her time as a member of the A Cappella Chorus that she became friends with Dion Frasier (’00), a native of Buffalo, NY.

Dion learned about the college through several close friends who attended in previous years. He enrolled in 1996 with sights on a Christian ministry major. He also was involved with performing groups and experienced the same spiritual awakening as Kristy.

“I was a Christian when I came to college, but I think I found Christ at Rochester,” Dion explains. “It has had a profound impact on my ministry and growth. I knew the Bible and the arguments and all the talk, but the college is where I found Christ for the first time.”

Dion and Kristy married in 1999 and served ministries in Flint and Lansing before moving to Reynoldsburg, Ohio in 2002. Kristy is currently employed at TS Tech USA, a division of Honda. She also sings on the praise team at the Reynoldsburg Church of Christ where Dion serves full-time as the senior minister. The couple has two daughters—Kaitlynn, 8 and Kyra, 4.

Dion’s ministry focuses on diversity and reconciliation as a result of his life experience in Buffalo, Rochester Hills and now Reynoldsburg. “I’m trying to strive for unity across racial lines, cultural lines, and religious divides. That’s been a great passion and mission of mine,” Dion says. “I gained a great appreciation for that at Rochester. Promoting unity is something that I’ve been engaged in and I feel like we’ve made strides.”

Even though Kristy and Dion have grown personally and spiritually as individuals and parents, they haven’t lost sight of what is really important. Despite the current economic and political climate they both agree that life’s circumstances shouldn’t carry more weight on today’s college students than faith in God.

“I would tell students that no matter what, always depend on God because he’s going to see you through everything,” says Kristy.

Dion echoes her sentiment. “Fear is something that grips us on many levels. I was quite amazed at the fears raised during the election of Barack Obama. I heard stories about an antichrist and other things. Fear shouldn’t be in our vocabulary because we know who is truly in power. In light of everything that’s going on we should understand that we have a God bigger than our 401(k) issues and political issues. Our hope and trust is in the one true God.”

Both Dion and Kristy stay connected to Rochester College and share their faith with the younger generation through ELEVATE, the college’s annual summer camp.

Three generations of alumni make their mark on campus

The Kirks-Pepper family saga began with an ink stain on a white blazer. Bob Kirks, a native of Dearborn, MI, enrolled at Michigan Christian College in 1963. As a teenage booster at the Allen Park Church of Christ, Bob heard that a Church of Christ college was in the works in Rochester Hills. He along with other youth from Allen Park took an immediate interest and invested their time and energy into pulling weeds and shoveling dirt during campus construction. "I was excited there was a Christian college being built in the area," says Bob. "I even worked in the kitchen at the college to pay for half of my tuition."

Bob cites the evening devotionals as significantly impacting him as a young Christian, as well as former coach and dorm manager Bill Shinsky. "He always made himself available for students to talk to. He acquainted himself with students and was an all around good guy," recalls Bob. However, the highlight of Bob’s academic

The lighted path

Verna Dority finds fulfillment in leading Christian women

by Elizabeth Fulton

The familiar chapter 119, verse 105 in the book of Psalms reads, “Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.” For alumna Verna Dority, the path leading to the person she is today was formed by an assortment of life experiences, including several she still cherishes from her time at Michigan Christian College.

Growing up in the towns of Mishawaka and LaGrange, Ind., Dority found it hard to enjoy herself at the high school she attended. Kent Hoggatt, now a communication professor at Rochester College, and Dority were members of the same church and a singing group. Hoggatt suggested an alternative route of education that included MCC. Dority jumped at the opportunity to apply to the college’s program which would allow her to skip her senior year of high school and complete general course requirements through the college. After being accepted, Dority began attending MCC in September 1974 when she was only 16 years old.

For three semesters Dority participated in one of her favorite activities, A Cappella Chorus. “Some of my best memories are of my time in chorus. We traveled and sang in very unique places, and we all sang so beautifully together. I loved it!” she says. After her time at MCC ended in December of 1978, Dority joined the National Guard and later went on to serve in the United States Army. Following her release from the Army in 1980, she used the long-standing GI Bill to complete her master’s degree in social work. Dority then spent the next five years working at the University of Alaska in Anchorage as an adjunct and assistant professor. During this time she was also able to accomplish her goal of becoming a licensed clinical social worker.

Today, Dority owns a private practice called Carolina Counseling Services located near Ft. Bragg in Fayetteville, N.C. The practice works primarily with military families in the area. She also launched a motivational and informational website for ladies of the churches of Christ. The idea for a ministry website, which was later named Lighted Path, came to Dority in the summer of 2007 when she realized a considerable need for this type of site existed. Since its official launch in November of the same year, women around the country have shared their stories encouraged by other sisters through the contributions made to the website. “If we have encouraged even one sister to stay on the path who might otherwise have veered off... that would be an awesome reward!” said Dority.

When Dority is not working with her business and the ministry of Lighted Path, she and her husband, Michael Lumpkins, enjoy taking morning walks with their dog and 12-year-old iguana! She also writes and records music and spends time helping coordinate the ladies’ activities for the Helen St. Church of Christ in Fayetteville. Dority is the proud mother of Amber (27) and Shane (23). Lighted Path is available online at www.lighted-path.net.

Children’s book connects college friends

Julianna Blankenship uses illness as time to pen book

by Andrea Walker, Suburban Lifestyles, and Andrea Terrell, The Shield

After college, it’s common for friends to fall out of touch, losing contact as busy lives take people across the country and out of reach. For Troy resident Julianna Blankenship (’06) this was one loss she didn’t want to see happen. So, in addition to planning yearly get-togethers and promising to write one another, Blankenship wrote a children’s book to keep her college friends connected for years to come.

Blankenship’s book, titled Sally Lumpkin’s Party, captures the fun and anticipation of six friends as they attend a party for one of their own. College friends and roommates served as character inspirations, even lending their names to the characters themselves.

“Allison [Cox] Milligan, ’06, Rebekah [Parsons], ’06, Michelle [Woody] Lewis, ’04, Sally [Madurski] Derrough, ’06 [and Amy [Jankowski] Mitchell, ’06] were all my roommates in college at one time or another,” said Blankenship. “The book is what I thought it would be like had we all grown up together in the same neighborhood.”

Blankenship majored in business communication and was convinced she was uncreative as a writer. However, she was encouraged to continue, especially by assistant professor of communication Lora Hutson. “She kept encouraging me to stick with it and to push the limits of what I thought I could do,” Blankenship said. “My advice to others would be to listen to and learn from those whose work you admire.”

Blankenship, 24, originally wrote Sally Lumpkin’s Party in 2003 as a poem for her friend Sally, never intending to publish it. “I came down with a bad case of monon in September of 2007 and could do little more than lay in bed for several months,” said Blankenship, “I decided to use that time to turn the poem into a children’s book mostly to give me something to focus on, a project, until I recovered.”

Armed with her laptop and a poem, Blankenship set out to find an illustrator to bring her story to life. A mutual contact connected her to local artist Deanna Dionne of Shelby Township. Blankenship said, “Deanna was a perfect fit for this book. Her illustrations gave my characters such personality and she captured the nuances of my friends that I had included in the book like Allison’s freckles, Sally’s love of daisies and Rebekah’s boisterous personality.”

Sally Lumpkin’s Party is for ages 3-7 and teaches the importance of friendship and keeping loved ones near. The book is available at amazon.com, barnesandnoble.com, autorhouse.com or by emailing sallylumpkinsparty@inbox.com.

Blankenship currently lives in Troy and writes freelance for various publications, in addition to being employed fulltime as a marketing and graphics specialist for Cornerstone Community Financial.
Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) to benefit RC

Another giving opportunity you may want to consider to benefit Rochester College students has recently been announced, as congressional action extended certain provisions of the Pension Protection Act of 2006 for both 2008 and 2009.

The Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 provides that, in each of the years 2008 and 2009, an owner of a traditional or Roth IRA may instruct the trustee to distribute directly to a public charity up to $100,000 without the distribution being included in taxable income, and that distribution will count toward the IRA owner’s mandatory withdrawal amount.

To qualify for IRA rollover treatment, the donor must direct the IRA manager to transfer funds directly to a charity. The donor must be at least age 70½ and the donee must be a tax-exempt organization to which deductible contributions can be made.

The gift must be outright; rollovers to a planned gift, such as a gift annuity or a charitable remainder trust, do not qualify. Similarly, outright distributions to a charity from employer-sponsored retirement plans, such as Simple IRAs, 401(k)s, and 403(b)s, do not qualify. Also, note that IRA rollovers may be included in a donor’s income for state and local tax purposes and may not earn an offsetting charitable deduction, depending on state and local law.

Donors should consult with their tax advisor regarding specific circumstances. This provides donors an opportunity to make a larger gift than might otherwise be made out of your fixed assets. Stock gifts may be made using the following information:

Chicagoland Reception raises $30k for scholarships

Chicago area endowed scholarship announced at annual event

The annual Chicagoland Reception was held on December 2, 2008 at the Lisle Hilton Hotel in Lisle, Ill. The reception welcomed friends and alumni of the college for the purpose of raising money to fund the Greater Chicago Endowed Scholarship. The goal for the scholarship is $50,000 with proceeds to benefit deserving high school seniors from the Chicago area.

Klint Pleasant, vice president of development, Scott Samuels, associate vice president of Development and interim president Rubel Shelly were in attendance on behalf of Rochester College. Chris Shields (’04), outreach minister for the Naperville Church, conducted the opening prayer. Shields, a former RC admissions officer, was in attendance with his wife Kristan (Tuori, ’02). Several area preachers were present including Leonardo Gilbert (’79) from the Sheldon Heights Church, Patrick Odom from the Northwest Church, Chuck Miller from the Greater Chicago Church, and Rich Little from Naperville.

The reception was keynoted by Shelly with closing remarks and prayer by Little. Rochester College highlighted the 50th Anniversary Celebration with a video presentation. Gilbert brought several prospective students from the Sheldon Heights Church to take part in the reception. The students were treated to an RC men’s varsity basketball game the following Friday against Purdue Calumet.

“The event was very successful and I’m glad we changed the format from a formal dinner to an informal reception,” said Pleasant. “It’s a blessing to have Christian leaders in the Chicago area as Rochester College supporters. This event will continue to solidify relationships we have with the Chicago area and hopefully bring more students from Illinois to our campus.”

Special thanks goes to Lance Johnston, father of current student Lydia Johnston, who provided audio visual support and to Betsy Addams and Vivian Avey who made significant contributions towards the scholarship.
